

Student Night: Engle Printing & Publishing

February 24, 2022

Speaker

A representative from Engle Printing & Publishing

Tour Location

*1100 Corporate Blvd.
Lancaster*

Tour Time

*4:00 with last tour
starting at 5:30 pm*

Program & Dinner Location

*Hempfield High School
200 Stanley Ave.
Landisville, PA*

Social Hour and Displays

5:00–6:30 pm

Dinner

6:30 pm

Cost

*$50 - members
$60 - guests
FREE - students & teachers*

RSVP

February 11 at slcreservation@gmail.com

Dress is business casual.

*Dress is business casual.
No open toe or high heel shoes permitted on the tour. No cell phones or cameras allowed in the manufacturing area. Hearing protection is optional.*

Engle Printing & Publishing Co., Inc. (EPC) is a family-owned and family-operated business founded in 1954 by Alvin Engle and his wife, Pauline. The Engles started the business with a sheetfed Multilith press installed in the basement of their Mount Joy home. In 1959, the family became publishers when they purchased the Elizabethtown–Mount Joy Merchandiser, a community advertising paper with an original press run of 5,600. Alvin left his daytime job in 1960 and became a full-time printer/publisher.

The growing business overflowed into the family's garage, then into a 20-by-100-foot shop in Mount Joy in 1965. EPC saw several expansions over the years—from new buildings to new equipment to publications. When Alvin passed away unexpectedly in 1971, Pauline kept the vision alive and continued the expansion efforts. EPC opened a Hempfield plant in 1998 to accommodate state-of-the-art equipment and a 16-unit, three-story Goss Universal Press.

Pauline passed away in 2020, and the next two generations of the Engle family are now continuing the company's tradition of offering quality commercial printing services, fostering strong ties to the local communities, and expanding the EPC brand. The brand currently includes an extensive publication group of weekly community newspapers, a Pennsylvania travel guide, and several lifestyle magazines.

Engle Printing & Publishing Co., Inc.